23rd Psalm

The Lord is my shepherd; I shall not want. He maketh me to lie down in green pastures; he leadeth me beside still waters. He restoreth my soul; he leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for His name's sake. Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil; for thou art with me. Thy rod and thy staff they comfort me. Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies; thou anointest my head with oil; my cup runneth over.
Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life; and I will dwell in the house of the Lord forever.

Dear Carolyn:

I was delighted to get your E-mail - and I will try to put in writing some of the names I remember on my father's side.

Dad had many brothers and sisters, and Phoebe, his mother died when he was about five years old. His father never remarried. William Rensch (his father) served in the Civil War - infantry-handled horses-and he and Phoebe Aldrich Rensch are buried in Eddy's Cementary - rural DeKalb County - between Butler and Hamilton.

You inquired about Nick Rensch. My father had a brother named Nick. He also had brothers named David, Will. Two sisters: Mary and Lydia. I feel quite certain there were more, but those were the only ones I recall. There were two sets of twins - and I think Nick and Mary were one set.

David (the oldest I believe) married Margaret ________ - I can fill in the blank in a day or so, I suppose. Margaret was pregnant and not married and Uncle David married her and farmed for her parents. He is buried in their family plot in Powers Cementary - close to Metz and Ohio state line. The family lived just north of Alvarado, on the West side of the road - a large "well-to-do" home. Uncle Dave and Aunt Margaret never had children. The child born to Margaret was named Arco and she married Lester Barron, and during my childhood they lived across the road on the East side of the road. Uncle Dave spent his last years in a small house just West of Alvarado on the north side of the road - probably a part of Margaret's parents' farm. I think one of the Barron boys was a Radio/TV announcer around Angola?? I never met him - think Virginia did.

William - not to be confused with my Uncle Will Everetts-died rather young - I never recall meeting him. His widow lived west of Angola, I believe. Dad and Mother never kept in contact. No children.

Nick lived on a farm close to Battle Creek, MI. Dad had a motorcyle (goodness he was ahead of his time!) - and he had a sidecar. He took Mom Virginia and I up to visit Uncle Nick and Aunt Libby, at least once a year. He had married a lady with several boys and they had one daughter, Wanda. Virginia loved to visit them, they had a huge swing and the boys would swing her - and then she also loved the chocolate cake Aunt Libby made. I have the recipe in Mom's handwriting marked "Aunt Libby's

Chocolate cake."

Wanda was about Virginia's age - more outgoing (coarse?) She married very young and had a large family - sorry I do not know her married name. She wrote Dad after we had bought the farm near Angola. Someone (husband, son?) had been in a serious farm accident and she wanted money. Mother wrote her that we were not able to help her. To my knowledge we lost contact with her.

Mary, much older than Dad, married Jay Skelton. They had one daughter, Audra, who married _________ (I should be able to fill in the blank). Audra was a great musician and had a complicated organ in her home. He had a barber shop in Edgerton, Ohio. They had one son, LaVon. LaVon was a bit younger than I, and is still living in Edgerton. I contacted him several years ago. I wondered if he had inherited some photos we could copy. I never asked him. Carolyn might be able to follow up, for I am sure Aunt Mary lived with them in her latter years. We had a good conversation and I left the next call up to him. He has never followed up. Aunt Mary and Uncle Jay, and Audra and husband are buried in the Edgerton Cemetary.

Lydia, I believe was the oldest. She married a Hoffman from Pleasant Lake, IN. Raymond (Kermit?) had some wild story that he had mortgaged some pigs and then sold them. To escape prosecution they moved to Pleasant Lake, North Dakota. They had several children - a daughter Nola who died in her early twenties, at least two sons, one who became a cowboy (not as romantic as I anticipated when he visited). And Lee, who left the cold and hard life for Jackson, MI. where he worked in a factory. He looked upon our Dad as a very close uncle and since he was Raymond's age he visited several times a year. He would come wthout notice and if we had gone to bed, he would crawl in bed with Raymond. He had one daughter, Maureen (sp?) married to Lyle McArthur - about Carolyn's age. As long as Eleanor had a yearly picnic she and Lyle came. They have now turned their Jackson home over to the children and moved to Zepherhills, Florida.

My dad had an aunt: Salina Bell, sister to Dad's father. I believe Bell was from this area. They married migrated to Council Bluff, Iowa where they purchased land and saw Council Bluffs grow as did their investments. Mother, Kermit and Virginia and I made a trip to visit Aunt Salina in the fall of 1940 (I think it was). It was an old house, brick, and probably a mansion in its day. She had a maid. The whole thing was a bit of culture shock for me. A nephew, Burly Waite had taken over the real estate office they had established. He came and drove us all around the city and over to Nebraska. He was older than Kermit - but I think a bit younger than Dad.

In Aunt Salina's will she gave a property to Dad and Aunt Mary. Dad and Aunt Mary disagreed - Dad holding that Wanda had to be considered. Aunt Mary feeling that if Wanda never knew, whar did it matter. Dad and Aunt Mary did not visit after that. This must have been in about 1945??.

Now I think I have aired all the drty laundry that so often occurs in families. Some of my memories may be clouded also. Dad was a very quiet man, and most of the talk came by bits and pieces from Mother and the older children. How I wish they were still here!!

I am glad to hear that Ceci got her American Girl doll. It was her favorite topic of conversation (except for her birthday, generally). I know she was thrilled.

I am sorry to hear that you have not had much rain. We have been under a flash flood watch for the past two weeks. The rain has been intermittent, with little accumulation (a half inch here and inch there). However, it has been overcast most of the time. Although, today is partly sunny. The clouds have been useful, they have kept the temperatures in the high 80's. Mosquitos are rather plentiful, however.

I was sorry to hear about the lawnmower. I hope the rod didn't do any real damage. You never know what you will find in the fields, do you? I am also sorry that the caterpillers are enjoying your garden so much, but, if you get some lovely butterflies, it sounds like it would be worth the effort.

I hope Emily and Michael are having fun in Florida. I also hope that Lisa is enjoying a little peace and quiet. She certainly deserves a rest.

I just got back from the dentist. It was not as bad as I had dreaded. The only really bad part is paying for it. Oh well, I guess teeth are necessary.

We bought plane tickets for our visit at Christmas. They are relatively cheap right now. Besides, we wanted to be sure that we could get direct flights and convenient times. And, we wanted to be sure that we can get there. We so love Christmas in Angola.

Things are going well here. Dan was in Houston on Tuesday. Unfortunately, it rained on him for the whole drive. He was happy, however, he was able to bring in two more people in to the project he is working on. The mountain-sized load has lessened to a hill. Oh well, he seems to be handling things well.

The wisteria has gone bananas. It is blooming and trying to take over the honeysuckle. I have decided to let them duke it out for a while. It is so beautifully wild.

I had ordered blueberries from Harry and David and they arrived yesterday. I got them all washed up and frozen since that's the way Dan likes them best. It makes such a good snack for him, so I bought a bunch. I did leave some unfrozen (my preferred method for eating them) and they are delicious. They are much better than anything we can get here.

I am glad that you told me about the cost of framing. I haven't gone yet, but, it's good to have a ballpark of the price. I know that my parents will be thrilled with the gift.

I have been busy crocheting again. I am working on one for Mom to go with her new TV room. It is going quite quickly and I am enjoying the process.

I hope you are doing well and that you get some rain soon. Cooler

John F. Hunt and his son, Frank, started for Kansas, with a car load of goods on Wednesday night and Wilson W. with the rest of the family left on Sunday night for that state, where they will make their future home.

Charley Haney has gone west and will accept a position on the Rock Island railroad as brakeman. Charley is one of the square, jolly, good fellows of Albion, and we dislike to lose him.

April 16, 1884
Mr. Johnston left for Dakota on last Monday night. It is expected that a number of Albion's accomplished young ladies would – pshaw! Just ask them when they are going to Dakota, if you want to be snatched bald-headed.

April 23, 1884
Mr. Riley, of Colorado, is at present in the city. Mr. Riley and wife will leave for the Centennial state next week to take up a permanent residence there. He owns a good paying gold mine.

May 14, 1884
Alvin Skinner, formerly of this place, but now a merchant of Mendon, Michigan, was in the city, the past week visiting "home sweet home "

May 21, 1884
Mr. And Mrs. Riley started for Colorado last week, on the footsteps of their son, who left a couple of weeks ago.

Freeman Shaffer, the pleasant clerk of JD. Berger's, left on Wednesday for Wisconsin and Dakota. He will, no doubt, locate some where in the "West." The Democrat's best wishes follow him

HESSIAN IMMIGRATION

Knyphausen the Hessian mercenaries fought and defeated the Americans in the battles of Long Island, White Plains, Brandywine and Monmouth. It was due to British conceit which did not heed the warnings of Hessian officers that the battle of Saratoga was lost to the British and turned into the first considerable victory for the Americans and the heroism of the Hessian mercenaries could not save the day for the British. American propaganda has made these Hessian mercenaries odious. Yet the American officers had a different opinion of these war-tried fighters. They approached the Hessian war prisoners with every kind of inducement to draw them over to the American side.

But only a few men deserted the British line. The German-American farmers were more successful in keeping them in the country. Many Hessian war prisoners were hired by the German farmers whilst the war was going on and eventually married their daughters and settled on the farms. Roger Lamb, an Irish soldier who was captured on October 18, 181 at Yorktown wrote in his diary: "Many prisoners hired themselves to different gentlemen. Early the next day (November 30, 1871) their masters came with horses, etc., and took them away. I was strongly importuned to go with them but my mind revolted at the thought. This dishonourable practice of enticing the British to become settlers, was but too common, during the greater part of the American war. When I was a prisoner with them, I was often strongly solicited, and promised many rewards, if I would desert and remain in the country. But I was determined to die rather than serve any state hostile to Great Britain" (Lamb Journal. Dublin, 1809, pp. 390-391). Washington himself recommended enrolling Hessian prisoners as American soldiers (Writings of Washington, vol. XIX, p. 409 and vol. XXIV, p. 176). This is surely the greatest tribute the Hessians could receive from any man. This manly appraisement on the part of Washington contrasts favorably with the hypocritical behavior of King Frederick the Great of Prussia who took every opportunity to express his contempt for the "scandalous man-traffic" and yet had made the Hessians the offer to enlist in his service. The proposal of the Prussian king was turned down and the Hessians went to America. Finally 11,933 Hessians returned to Germany, where they were received most honorably and were rewarded with a pension, while in the United States "the patriotic troops went home after the war thoroughly disillusioned and with nothing but paper promises in their pockets," as Washington himself wrote (Writings, XXVI, pp. 186, 239-241, 286).

THE HESSIAN IMMIGRANTS TO TUSCARAWAS COUNTY

The 11,933 Hessian mercenaries who in the autumn of 1783 and beginning of 1784 returned to their native country formed a little less than three percent (2.75%) of a population of 434,750 souls. Accordingly veterans of the American campaign were found scattered all over the Hessian lands, even in the smallest hamlets. These ex-soldiers had seen much of America; they had fought in New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania and other parts of the far-flung British front. A number of them had been marched as war prisoners up to Boston and down to Virginia, then up again to Maryland and Pennsylvania. All of them had been stationed in Canada for some time and had visited the great city of New York before leaving the country.

Certainly those returned American campaigners would delight in recounting their experiences at long winter evenings and other times to large groups of attentive listeners. Names of places immortalized by American history like New York, Philadelphia, Trenton, Saratoga were on the lips of those Hessian veterans and the American battles were re-told perhaps with greater zest at the hearths of Hessian homes than in the log-houses of disrupted American veterans.

In this way America as a land of promise became an inspiration in the minds of a younger generation which set their heart on emigration to the distant LAND OF LIBERTY. Letters written by Hessian soldiers who had not returned but settled in America would still more increase the desire of emigration by their glowing accounts of American prosperity. Yet the Wars of the French Revolution and of Napoleon with their subsequent train of poverty and distress blocked the road of emigration to most of the dwellers of Hesse as of other German countries. Thus it came to pass that only a few of the first generation of the Hessian veterans found an opportunity for emigrating to America, whilst emigration of large groups became possible only to the second generation who, better than the Hessians who did not return to Germany in 1783, realized the expectations of Washington in regard to peopling the country.

ROUTES OF IMMIGRATION FROM GERMANY IN 1825

In 1825, as for centuries before and decennia after, the route which lay open to eventual emigrants of western Germany was the water-way down the Rhine to the Belgian and Dutch seaports, Antwerp, Rotterdam and Amsterdam. Those who were located farther inland would use an affluent or the roads overland to reach the Rhine. The emigrants from Hesse would strike out overland for Mayence, where they embarked on a river-boat which was to carry them to Rotterdam or Amsterdam, or Antwerp. From these sea-ports emigrants found opportunities to sail for New York, Philadelphia, and Baltimore at any time during the year.

Those who would like to travel fast could take a pacquet-boat at Havre de Grace or at Liverpool for New York and cross the ocean in twenty or thirty days. Yet this route was very expensive for Germans, especially for families who were encumbered by heavy luggage. However, by 1850, when the railroads had created greater facilities of travel, Havre de Grace had become the favorite sea-port for emigrants from southern and western Germany.

In 1825 there was also a route open from Europe to New Orleans but passage-money was twice or more the amount charged for routes to New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore and for this reason German emigrants could not undertake to enter the United States via New Orleans at that time and two decennia after.

The Hessians floating down the Rhine from Mayence to Rotterdam or Amsterdam covered well nigh 400 miles in two to three weeks (8).

ROUTES OF IMMIGRATION TO OHIO IN 1825

Immigrants who landed in New York would sail up the Hudson River to Albany and would take there a canal boat to Buffalo and would cross the Lake Erie to the city of Erie and from there, about 110 miles overland, would reach the Ohio River at Pittsburgh. This road to the Ohio River is very long but it was travelled almost in the same time and at the same expense as the overland route from Philadelphia to Pittsburgh. At any rate this line of travelling was more comfortable and for people who carried heavy luggage was undoubtedly less expensive. As soon as the Ohio canal to Lake Erie was completed (in 1835), the Ohio River was reached at Portsmouth, Ohio, a great distance below and west of Pittsburgh.

Immigrants who landed at Philadelphia would travel overland to Pittsburgh to reach the Ohio River, where they found the facility to travel west on steam-boats. The distance from Philadelphia to Pittsburgh was 320 miles. Immigrants who landed in Baltimore would strike out for the Ohio River either at Pittsburgh or at Wheeling. The distance from Baltimore to Pittsburgh is 230 miles and to Wheeling 260 miles. The route to Wheeling was the better one by far, since it was over the National Turnpike. Duden in 1824 travelled from Baltimore to Frederickstown, Hagerstown, Hancock, Cumberland, Uniontown, Brownsville, Washington, Pa., to Wheeling in 31 days. Munk in 1832 travelled from Baltimore to Gettysburg, Chambersburg, Bedford, Somerset, Mount Pleasant, Washington, Pa., Claysville to Wheeling in 18 days. Duden remarks that the mail-coach covers the distance from Baltimore to Wheeling in three or four days.

The Hessians of Tuscarawas County reached the Ohio River at Wheeling on one or the other of those three routes: New York to Pittsburgh and down the Ohio to Wheeling, Philadelphia to Pittsburgh and down the Ohio to Wheeling or Baltimore to Pittsburgh down the Ohio or directly to Wheeling.

8—Duden, Gottfried, Bericht ueber eine Reise nach den westlichen Staaten Nordamerika's. Elberfeld, 1829, pp. 330, 332, The Travel Diary of Christopher Jacob Munk, April 21-August 17, 1832, published in Ohio State Archeological and Historical Quarterly, vol. 57, Columbus 1948, pp. 266-310, describing his travel down the Rhine on pp. 273-284.

However the first route was blocked at certain periods, for the New York Canal was frozen from December till April and the later Ohio canal was full of ice during the same months. On the other side the Ohio between Pittsburgh and Wheeling was too shallow for steam boats almost every summer from July till late in fall, even as late as the end of December. Travelling in other river boats consumed very much time. Ice, however, blocks steam boats on the Ohio seldom before the latter part of December and hardly longer than the end of February. The best season to travel overland is fall (9).

When Duden arrived at Wheeling on September 24, 1824, the hotels were overcrowded with travellers who for weeks had been waiting for rain and for the rising of the river to set the steamers afloat. The same situation prevailed at Pittsburgh and other cities on the Ohio.

The Hessians who crossed the Ohio River at Wheeling to push into the interior of the State of Ohio were confronted in 1825, and many years later, with a similar bad situation. The National Turnpike terminated at Wheeling and in Ohio there were only miserable roads which were maintained by the townships. Munk in 1832 travelled from Wheeling to Wellsburg, Steubenville, Wellston to Lisbon and ten miles farther in Columbiana County, 70 miles in five days (12th to 17th August). The Hessians immigrating into Tuscarawas County had to travel about the same distance in another direction (10).

Between the travels in Europe and America lay a sea-voyage of about 4,660 miles which was covered by Duden in 1824 in 67 days and by Munk in 1832 in 61 days (11).

ECONOMIC CONDITIONS OF THE HESSIAN IMMIGRANTS IN 1833 AND LATER YEARS

Immigration to Ohio was an expensive enterprise for the Hessians in 1833 and succeeding years. From the beginning of English colonization in North America poor people were carried to America by ship-owners without previous payment of transportation but on landing were sold, for a term of years, to pay the expense of their sea-voyage. This class of servants was called REDEMPTIONERS to distinguish them from the slaves. However, by the year 1820 this kind of servitude was stopped by the government.

On the other hand in Germany emigration of paupers, criminals, and other undesirable persons aided by the state and other political bodies, as it was done in Ireland, was unknown. Accordingly the German immigrants had to defray the expenses from their own means. The Hessian immigrants, like other German immigrants, were men of some means, energetic men, ambitious men who took the chances of success or failure in the new country, leaving the poor, the indolent, the weak and crippled at home. In this way voluntary emigration took away the cream of the working classes of Germany together with a certain amount of capital. Father John Martin Henni, the first pastor of the Hessians in Tuscarawas County, remarked in 1834 that the Catholic immigrants from Germany were recruited from families in easy circumstances and poor people were forced to remain back in Germany.

We have no diaries or similar documents of Hessian immigrants which would give us some detailed particulars about their economic conditions when first settling in Ohio. Yet they had been in the same conditions as their compatriot Christoph Jacob Munk and therefore, what Munk records about his travel, applies more or less to all of the early settlers of the Hessian Hills.

Munk states that he left his native village carrying on his person 1,500 thalers (i. e. $1,125). Passage in steerage, as Duden states, amounted to $90 to $100, for a single person. Munk paid hardly more than $400 for transportation of himself and wife and four children to Baltimore. Expenses from his native village to Amsterdam and from Baltimore to Columbiana County amounted hardly to more than $150.

Household goods and tools could be imported free of duty. Farm implements could be bought as cheap in Baltimore as in Germany and thereby save costs of transportation. Saddles were cheaper in Baltimore and Philadelphia than in Germany or Holland. Clothes and underwear, however, were much dearer in America owing to the exorbitant cost of tailoring and for this reason immigrants were instructed to carry with them supplies for many years (12). If we set down $100 for purchases in Baltimore, Mr. Munk arrived in Columbiana County with $475 cash money, a sum which was considerable in those days.

ECONOMIC VALUE OF HESSIAN IMMIGRANTS TO THE STATE OF OHIO IN 1833 AND LATER DECENNIA

New York Immigration Authorities stated in 1870 that every German immigrant averaged to carry on his arrival in New York $150 in cash money. Mr. Munk in 1832 did not come up to this average on landing in Baltimore: he possessed only $650 or an average of $108.33 for a family of six persons. We readily will admit that the purchase value of a dollar in 1832 was somewhat higher than in 1870.

Yet the values imported by German immigrants in the form of goods exceeded the cash totals many times. A writer described in 1867 the immigrants landing in New York in these words: "The Germans who arrive carry with them large trunks and boxes and bundles containing bedding for three generations, provision for two months, shoes, clothes and linen to last for half their life. The Irish carry their belongings mostly in a square box of the small dimension of a soap-box."

12—Duden, op. cit., pp. 333-334.

Mr. Munk in 1832 carried into Ohio at least 700 pounds of goods. He paid his driver for hauling 1244 pounds. Deducting the aggregate weight of 544 pounds for hauling him, his wife and children of 8, 7, 5 years and baby of nine months, the weight of goods must have amounted to 700 or more pounds.

Mrs. Munk must have done, what many a Hessian mother of a large family had done, in emigrating from Germany: she had been sitting near a heap of boxes and bundles watching her family goods, whilst the husband was arranging transportation at the sea-ports and stopping-places. On account of the cumbersome baggage the German immigrants preferred the water-ways to overland routes; besides the costs of transportation were cheaper. Duden stated that the usual freight-rates were $1.50 to $2.00 for every hundred pounds. Munk paid in 1832 per hundred pounds overland from Baltimore to Wheeling $2.25 and from Wheeling to Columbiana $4.00. Accordingly the Hessians who immigrated after completion of the Ohio Canal in 1835 would take a steamer at Pittsburgh or Wheeling and sail down the Ohio to Portsmouth, where they embarked on a canal boat to go up to Canal Dover.

The large trunks and strong boxes in which the German immigrants carried their goods across the ocean were kept and used for many years in their new homes in America. Fortunately some of them, like a number of vessels and tools, are jealously preserved in the museums as antiques. Most of them, however, have been destroyed, after the grandparents had died, by a generation which had no sense of propriety in regard to these most useful objects of their fore-fathers. The Hessians of Tuscarawas County were no more reverential towards the antiques of their forbears than the German Americans in other sections of the country. Since there was plenty of wood on the farms, large trunks and boxes were re-made into more convenient receptacles which would fit into the corners of the small cabins.

A very valuable element, however, was the person itself of the German immigrant. The immigration officials of New York reckoned that every immigrant represented a wealth of one thousand dollars of eventual productive labor. An adult slave used to be valued at from $800 to $1,000 and so an able-bodied immigrant of adult age may be looked upon as worth that sum to the country. Another way of economic valuation is to regard an able-bodied immigrant as representing the amount of money which is to be expended on a child to bring it up from infancy to maturity. The most reliable procedure however, is to calculate the probable earnings of the immigrant during his lifetime in America and to deduct therefrom his expenses of living. The remainder represents his net earning which the immigrant will contribute to the wealth of the country.

All these considerations of able-bodied immigrants as economic factors of eventual production may in individual cases turn out to be wrong. Children who die young, indolent, weak, crippled and sickly immigrants remain economic liabilities. Yet in the spiritual society they all were counted as equivalent in every way to the economically strong members. Thus every child of an immigrant German Catholic was counted as a unit in the statistics of the church's increase from the first day it was brought to America. This spiritual valuation defies every economic calculation.

IN SEARCH OF LAND FOR ESTABLISHING A SETTLEMENT

The earliest Hessian immigrants into Tuscarawas County were recruited from an ethnic group of families who had resolved to leave their country with the intention to form an agricultural colony in the United States. They could not expect to join their distant relatives who during the Revolutionary War had settled in the American colonies. These ex-soldiers and their descendants were scattered over New York, Pennsylvania and Maryland and no land was for sale in those states in 1825 and later, when even natives were emigrating from these states to the WEST. Accordingly the Hessians could realize their plan only by seeking land on the Ohio or Mississippi.

In 1825, and later, land had become cheaper the farther it was removed from the waterways of the Ohio and Mississippi. Extensive tracts of government lands were for sale at the cheapest rate, the minimum price being $1.25 per acre. Yet by 1825 the best lands had been taken up and large tracts of inferior lands were left which as Duden in 1824 remarked "were situated in unsuitable corners or found to be rather sterile." However some Hessians did not find government land as unsuitable to them.

The fame of Ohio as a farming-state had spread even to the Hessian fatherland, when the advance emigrants set out for America. Ohio was situated nearest the thriving states on the Atlantic and offered new land to prospective farmers. When in 1824 Duden drove through Ohio, the luxuriant woods and the countless creeks with fish; together with the everywhere present springs proved so inviting to him that his strong resolution to settle on the Mississippi came pretty near being shaken by the temptation to choose a homestead in the Buckeye State.

Accordingly the lure of Ohio explains why the Hessians decided to settle in that rising commonwealth in 1833 and later. But this does not explain the reason why they decided to locate in Tuscarawas County.

There were no Emigration Societies in Germany in 1830 or 1835 to give suitable information to Catholic emigrants to America. However, there was extant a number of books, both optimistic and pessimistic, published with the intention to guide Germans on their way to final settlement across the Atlantic. Yet the young men, who had been sent ahead to find the eventual farm-land, were not guided by any books in their choice: they had found the cheap offer of suitable land in Tuscarawas County by certain agents too tempting and had accepted it.

The further reason why the Hessians settled on the hills of Lawrence Township is not far to seek; they shared with most immigrant farmers the prejudice against the river plains. Mr. Mansfield remarks: "From the scanty growth of forest trees upon the plains, the soil was judged by them to be of inferior quality. Hillside slopes or secluded ravines were preferred. Those lands which were covered with the heaviest growth of timber and would require the greatest exertion to clear and prepare for the plow, were chosen, where a choice was possible. A spot for the cabin was always selected adjacent to a spring of water" (13).

There is a tradition of the Seikel family that the young man who had been sent to find a suitable homestead in America, had bought a piece of land in the fertile plains. Yet when the father later arrived with the family he sold that property to acquire a piece of land in the hills. "Here are giant trees," the father is reported to have said to the son, "here is good land." Yet we must also consider that the Hessian peasants were not insensible to the poetic charm of the landscape. Nature had prepared for them in America forests with trees familiar and new to them shooting up to heights unknown in the fatherland. Besides the hills topped by woods reminded them of the landscape of the Hessian lands so dear to them: their new country looked so much like the old. Finally the easy reach of the Ohio Canal which had just been built evidently had no slight influence on their choice of the Hessian Hills in Tuscarawas County.

EARLIEST CATHOLIC RESIDENTS OF TUSCARAWAS COUNTY 1825 TO 1834

Bishop Hartley writes: "The number of Catholics, IF ANY, living in Tuscarawas County up till 1835 cannot be ascertained" (14). Accordingly the Bishop had doubts about the existence of Catholics in that district prior to 1835. However, he states that "the first Catholic settlers located in the vicinity of Bolivar about the year 1825 were visited, as it is certain, from time to time by priests from Cincinnati, Cleveland and Louisville" (15). But, "the tradition among the people, that Bishop Fenwick visited those regions" could not be verified (16). Furthermore the bishop remarks that "the number of the earliest Catholic residents of Tuscarawas County could not be learnt." The reason for this is that those Catholics were migratory Irish laborers on the Ohio Canal: they came and went without leaving any records.

The earliest Catholic settlers of Tuscarawas County were French and German farmers. On May 3, 1834 the French pioneers John B. Draime and Francis Margot purchased land in township 9 (Franklin) (17) and surely a number of other French families were established there in the vicinity of Bolivar whose names, as Bishop Hartley rightly remarks, cannot be learnt. Joseph Kranz, an immigrant from Germany,

NOTE TO RESEARCHERS

In 1795, the United States Congress passed legislation which established the guidelines to be used in the naturalization process. A free white male could apply to become a naturalized citizen of the United States if he met the following criteria:

1) Residence in the United States for at least 5 years.
2) Declaration of intent to become a citizen had been made at least 3 years previously.
3) Residence in the state or territory where final papers were granted for at least 1 year.

This law further stated that citizenship could be granted by any local court of record. In Ohio, naturalizations came under the jurisdiction of the county courts.

In 1906, the naturalization process was taken over by the federal government, under the auspices of the Bureau of Immigration and Naturalization. After this time, these documents became federally issued records.

All of the records indexed in this volume are located in the Department of Archives and Special Collections, Wright State University, Dayton, Ohio, 45435.

Hi,
I am sending you the will of John Rensch and some other notes which I had in my file. Some of these I may have copied and sent before. If I did, discard them. I also enclosed a descendancy of John Rensch, but done from the Zimmerman side. As you can see, the trensches and Zimmerman intermarried a couple of times.
I am still not up to par, but getting there slowly. My husband is yet very weak, but nothing can be done. Just wait and see. The cancer he has is very slow developing. I go stay with one or other of the children when things get too despairing. I shouldn't load this on your shoulders, but if you don't hear from me for some time, illness is the cause.
Best wishes from Marie

Index to Tuscarawas County, Ohio Naturalizations

Volume 2

1854-1884

This book is an index to Tuscarawas County Probate Court Naturalizations Volumes 1, 2, and 3. Volume one contains the applications for citizenship. Volume 2 and 3 are the actual naturalizations. Also Volumes 2 and 3 are double volumes. When you open these books from the front you have the naturalizations for men who were naturalized by the application process. If you turn the book over and open it, you have the men who were naturalized under what was called the 18 year law. These were men who arrived in the United States before their eighteenth birthday. As long as they had been here at least five years, they did not have to first apply for citizenship, but instead were granted citizenship right away. Because of this, we have indexed volumes 2 and 3, as volume 2 and 2A and volume 3 and 3A, with the A being the ones who went through the application process.

These applications or naturalizations only contain the name of the applicant, the date, and the country of origin.

Carolyn,
Just received your message. I see that you have many more details on the Rensch family members than what I have. I also have a picture of the first John Rensch, but not his wife. If you care to send me your snail mail address, I can photo copy what I have in my files and send it on to you. I don't have a scanner so can't send it mail. Besides the John Rensh picture, I have one of Selina and some of Levi's family. The Rensches came from Kassel, Hesse, Germany and on one census it states that Conrad R was born in Germany, so that puts thme as coming to the States before 1835. This last has not been verified so far.

In his Civil War pension application, William states that he was born in Tuscarawas County, Ohio, in 1844. As far as I know, the family moved to DeKalb County, Indiana, from there, because they show up in the 1850 census of DeKalb County, Indiana. I notice from census records that Conrad was born in Pennsylvania, but I am not sure where in Pennsylvania. There is a John Rensch in the 1840 census in Paradise Township, York County, Pennsylvania, but the ages are not quite right, and they are listed as having 3 sons, whereas my records indicate that one child should have been a girl. I'm not completely discounting this census information yet, because it's quite possible that these are just errors in recording. Also, John & Margaret were surely more at home speaking German than English.*

Hi,
Your letter with the Rensch inofrmation arrived today. Now when I go into my family programme after entering you data, I can find out what the relationship is between you and my husband. Had you gathered information on any other branch of the family? So far, the two I had data on were Conrad and Levi, and now William. I think I sent you a copy of John's will. Did you notice that he did not leave George any more of his estate than it was lawful to leave. In one of my sources I noticed that George spelled the Rensch name differently. I hope I sent you that, too. If not let me know and I will go over the papers again. I was preparing some data for another e-mail relative (on the Bruner branch--nothing to do with Rensch) at the same time and I was trying to sift through the papers so maybe got the pertinent info mixed. Let me know if I sent a copy of the will. Thanks for sending what you had.

Dear Carolyn,
I was greatly surpised to get your note in the mail today. First let me inform you that I am not a Rensch descendant. My husband is the blood relative, but I have "adopted" all his relatives as my own as I search for them. Not that anyone responded to my query--but I did get some Rensch information through the Mo Grundy co, genealogy society. Conrad was the father of my husband's grandmother. Conrad married Hannah Robinette in DeKalb co, IN and they went to Mo. They had two girls and a boy, and Hannah died when the boy was about two years old. Conrad married again to a widow with three children, and then I lost him for a while, but eventually found where he died. While digging for info, I was put in contact with a John Rensch in Grundy co. and we sent letters to and fro, as well as pictures. John (the one I wrote to) is descended from Earnest, 11nth child of John and Margaret Ann Rensch. We are descended from their first child and you from the 7nth child, if the info I have gathered is correct. John sent me some family photos---one is of the original John Rensch, one is of Selina and there are some other family groups. As there were so many children in that first generation, I did not try to research any others but Conrad. I am on the lookout for Conrad's son, who is named John, was 14 in 1880 and was living with his Robinette grandparents in DeKalb co. Although I do have some Rensch info, I surely would appreciate getting what you have. In exchange I can send you almost all of the names of the descendants of Conrad. Our grandmother's name was Ida Rensch. She had seven living children and most of three of them had large families, too.
I do hope we can do some exchanging of family info and perhaps photos.
Marie

I tried sending this by e-mail as you can see. First I typed in a wrong address but then corrected it and still would not go - so here is to snail mail. Hope it gets there.

Marie

Hi Caroline,
I have just got a package of Rensch information off to you. This includes some pictures of the Spriggs people. Grandma Ida's sister married a Spriggs and when I searched her line I got quite a lot of newspaper clippings and things. I hope you find them interesting. I have also sent you outline descendant charts of Grandma Ida's descendants. I couldn't do the chart all in one as I wanted. My printer is getting old and after six or so pages, it does not print properly. My son tells me I am using too cheap a paper. Anyway, I ran them off in sort of "family blocks" so everyone is there. It seems to take me ages to prepare something to send away any more. Since beginning on your package I have had to take my husband to the doctor's twice--once for consultation and once for a shot of cortisone. He has calcium deposits in his left shoulder and the doctor is trying to releive the pain. Next week we begin to go thirty miles to a physio-therapy clinic for therapy to the shoulder, so I'll really get behind or maybe find myself coming around some bend or something.
I just noticed in a note yoe sent. You mentioned having looked for the name of the place where the Rensch's had come from. You had Carahessin and Kuressen. I think it was on one of the census sheets I saw the name written as Kassel, Hesse. This latter one is how the John Rensch I wrote to spelled it. I have a fairly old atlas here which seems to be quite reliable in listing old places and it lists "Hesse" as a region and Kassel (Cassel) as a city with quite a large population. That may be the place they came from in Germany. I use to refer to it as Hesse Kassel, getting the words out of order. Let me know if you find them. I see by the obituary of John (Grandpa) Rensch that he may have come to the US in 1834--just a year after my Bruners came over.
Anyway have some good reading.
Marie

I just checked my mail for a message from my granddaughter and I also found yours. It should take about a week for the package to get there. I have been putting the photos you sent in my family story albums and I seem to have hit a snag. You sent me a page with a group photo of the relatives at Harley and Elva's 50 anniversary. Another photo on the page is of a mustached man (the one I think resembles my Lee). You have a name, Joseph Walker Everetts, father of Elva, son of May Celesta Haynes Everetts. Then a bit below you sent a note saying "My grandfather, Raymond Rensch etc etc. I am wondering if the gentleman with the mustache is Joseph Walker Everertts or your grandfather, Raymond. I sure don't want to mis-label the photos so I'll wait until I hear from you. And yes, I do think that Howard Rensch does look like Earnest's son. Family resemblances run deep, don't they?.
As for the naturalization papers of these ancestors, I had not really thought on that because, I tried finding the Bruner ones and got blanks so guess I just got discouraged. However, for my thoughts, whatever they are worth, I think that perhaps naturalization may have been in DeKalb county for the simple reason that John Rensch owned land there. The reason I know about the land ownership is because John sold his land in DeKalb to John Robinette (father of Hannah, Conrad's wife) shortly before the Rensch's left for Missouri. It seems to have been one place where they remained for a time.
When I begin taking my husband for therapy, it will mean three trips a week and likely he'll be spending an hour in therapy so time will be gobbled. However, we all have to do our best. Good luck with searching.
Marie

I received the message saying you are mailing some more photos. Thanks, and I shall let you know when they arrive. I note from a message from Jan Metz that you two are corresponding. She is the lady who had the Seymour Haynes I was mentioning. So now you can both put him in his right slot. I would imagine that you, too, have followed the Rensch family from census to census. I have the family in DeKalb county in 1850--but John the father is not included. He is included in the same location, with the family in 1860. Then in 1870, the family is is Missouri with only the two youngest children at home. I am not sure I sent this next sheet to you, but I do have two sheets (legal size) listing all the John Rensch family for a submission to the LDS church. This is dated 13 Jul 1975 and was compiled by Mrs Norton Rensch, of Springfield, MO, and Mrs Norton is designated as a great grandaughter of John Rensch, the immigrant. Since the submission was so old I did not follow up on the submitter.

I also have another submission to the LDS church--George's family. This one is from Alice Jean Rensch, grand-daughter of George, and on this submission, George's son Ralph has changed his last name from Rensch to Reusch and a note to the effect is made by the submitter. What I find rather intriguing about the name change is that our Grandma Ida (Rensch), when she married, used this spelling (Reusch). This is how her marriage is registered in the DeKalb county marriage books.

I may have told you that last fall and late summer I was suffering from an accute deffiency of potassium in my body and I was functioning only at a very low percentage of my mental capabilities. Memory was especially afftected and even yet the chemical balance is not evened up, so I may repeat things or totally forget others. I am hoping a correct balance of chemicals can be reached. It is not great, operating in this way.

In one of your notes, you mentioned that since I had been in touch with the Missouri Rensches, I must have Selina's information. But to my knowledge all the data I received was from John Rensch, Levi's branch. Perhaps the Bible sheet copies came from Selina--he did not mention their source.

Happy hunting while I balance pills and look after my "fluey" spouse.

Marie

Dear Carolyn,

Thank you for the family pictures which you sent. I always enjoy family photos, old or new. We have not taken many photos of our family this year--I am not sure why as we usually do take quite a few. I guess there were no special occasions to do so. Perhaps next year--My 75th birthday and our 50th anniversary occur next year so perhaps we will "get with it".

It is so nice when families get together, but it seems that now, family members gather only when there is a funeral to attend and then there are always some who "can't stay as they have this or that to do". It is a shame that family members can't take time to enjoy one another in these days of fast transportation. I guess everyone out there are busy trying to get that almighty dollar.

Of all my eight children there is only one family who always make time to go to a wedding, gathering, or funeral and actually make contact with family.

That was disapointing that you could not get into the Allen County Library as I have been informed they they are about next to the Mormon Library in Utah insofar as genealogical content is concerned. I have never written to them for help to see if they do give help to family searchers. I have just heard about them through researchers who have hunted for me. Perhaps next year Tuscarawas will be on your itinerary.

I did not travel much either this summer, although I did go quite some distance north of here to get photos of the cemetery where my maternal grandfather is buried. I knew there would be no stone, but a name and a view of the graveyard is at least something to have. My maternal grandmother, an aunt and several uncles are buried in another cemetery not too far from here and I finally got there this summer. Again, no stones, but a general view. I'm afraid that side of the family were so dirt poor they just could not afford any grave markings. And perhaps they didn't care. I have a toddler brother buried in a cemetery a distance from here and my husband and I try to go there at least every two years to see if the cross we etched his name on is still in place. The cross is iron and homemade so there was no great expense there, but my two brothers and sister have never visited the cemetery so far. Of course they don't remember thier brother as I do.

Do you plan on researching in Germany to find out why the Rensches left the country? If you do, let me know and we can share what we may find. So far, I have not attempted a German search, but I have heard that it is not too difficult.

Right now I am concentrating on my husband's maternal side. I have not been able to find anything beyond his great grandfather and mother on his Tyrrell side. (His mother was a Tyrrell) I have found a few generations back on his grandmother's maternal side, but the Tyrrells elude me.

I really ought to be out in the yard pruning shrubs before the weather gets colder, but the spirit is not there to do so. It is quite warm here and very dry--too dry.

I do hope you have success on your family search during the coming winter.

Sincerely,

Marie

Our supply of data is constantly growing.  If these search results do not include the person(s) you are particularly hunting, you should try again later.
When you do, you can make things easier for yourself b looking only at new data by excluding all data submitted before today.  (See the documentation for a description of how to do that by using the "LOADED SINCE" phrase.)
